

Blind Dating

What is it?

The classic dating game show – a chance for colleagues to be thrown together with a mystery figure in the name of love...

Everyone's adopted mum 'Our Cilla' plays matchmaker in a hilarious display of saucy questions and flirty banter. Who is behind that screen? And who will be spending the evening with you?

The decision...is yours!

How does it work?

Three suitors attempt to win the attention of a single player by answering a set of questions. These contestants are hidden from the player's view by a screen, so impressions are formed via their responses only.

Who features in the game show is up to you: Colleagues may try to charm other colleagues, or alternatively battle it out to impress a model, look-a-like, or actual celebrity!

Following the format of the original TV show, 'Our Cilla' introduces each of the three contestants, and then the lucky player they are trying to romance. The player then asks three, often bizarre questions, and each of the contestants reply as best they can to capture the interest of their would-be-partner.

After three questions, our disembodied voiceover man 'Graham' entertaingly sums up the three contestants to 'help' the player with their decision. The player then announces to everyone which of the three they want to spend the evening with.

Once the choice has been made, the player is introduced to the two contestants they turned down. Then the screen slides back and the winning couple meet face to face!

The winning couple can be handcuffed together for the rest of the event, seated at a pink heart shaped table at the front with a bottle of champagne, or take part in another activity together.

Later, the couple report back to the audience on the outcome of their date. Will it end in romance, or absolute disaster?

Who is it suitable for?

- All age ranges, organisations and backgrounds
- Employees, clients or families
- Most effective for large organisations where colleagues lack familiarity

Blind Dating
