

Film Making

What is it?

Our film making activities will bring out the Steven Spielberg in everyone! These creative and energetic activities will engage people in your brand, values or theme, whilst having the opportunity to try something different to the average day job.

Training Video

A chance to write, storyboard, film and produce a training video specific to your company. Whether it exposes the do's and don'ts of sales, the art of great customer service or niche networking know-how, teams collaborate to create their own entertaining and educational film.

Teams tackle the challenge in one of two ways. Each group works together to produce their own complete training video, or teams work on a scene or set of scenes to contribute to a collaborative 'one team' film.

Roles are allocated, including producer, director, scriptwriter, actors/actresses and editor.

Usually having 2-3 hours to script, film, edit and produce their videos, teams are compelled to employ effective communication, time-management and creativity.

With access to our 'film studios' you will find essential equipment, facilities and expertise to aid in your videos.

Feature Film

Lights, camera, action!

Create and produce your own version of a blockbuster.

Again, teams can work on the same movie and produce separate scenes for it, or tackle different films independently.

Obviously time will be of the essence. You won't be able to create the next Oscar nominated movie! Time management will be key to condensing your masterpiece in to a five minute production.

Ever-helpful, our experts can advise teams on the production of their scenes. Utilising an assortment of costumes, make-up and props, the amateur thespians are equipped to act out their cinematic extravaganza.

After all the acting amusement, teams edit and produce their mini masterpieces and the teams' films will be screened.

The finale!

After all editing and production is complete, the final results can be screened to the whole group. This may be over dinner where your creations are judged and winners are announced, with awards presented for the best videos in certain categories; such as 'best overall video', 'most interesting representation', 'most informative' or 'greatest entertainment'.

Your film making event can be tailored to any of your specific requirements and training videos can focus on key business or product messages.
